BUDDY RODGERS SCORES AT STATE

With blaring trumpets and moaning saxophones, not to mention resounding drums and lamenting trombones his media of expression, (Buddy) Rogers "jazztunes" his way across the audible silver screen at the State theater for his first sound appearance as a versatile orchestra

"Close Harmony" is a play of backstage life, and Rogers, as the leading male character, plays a role for which he seems splendidly fitted. Doubtless his earlier traning as a player in the student orchestra at Kansas university had something to do with the capable musicianship of this amazing young actor. It was certain that the Rogers fans were agreeably surprised to see and hear their favorite in the kind of part they always wanted to have him perform for

Nancy Carroll, who was last seen with Rogers in the screen version of "Abie's Irish Rose" was gorgeous as the leading woman, playing the part of a song and dance headliner in a big cinema palace where Buddy and his band were given a try-out. Miss Carroll demonstrated the singing and dancing prowess that made her famous on the New York stage before she entered the "flickers."

The play has plenty of gripping plot and an abundance of sure-fire edy, supplied by the stars and Jack Oakie and "Skeets" Gallagher.

Columbia Pictures however, recognized the ability of Holt as a dramatic actor and created a new Holt personality for the screen. He was cast in several productions, but his role in "Submarine" marked him as one of the outstanding actors in pictures today.

Lieutenant Soucek's airplane altitude record of 39,140 feet, made May 8, was broken on May 26 by Neunhofen, of Germany, who attained 42,123 feet, but Soucek, using the same plane by which he made his altitude record and to which he attached pontoons, came back with another flight in which he scared to 38,560 feet last week, and thus holds the altitude record for seaplanes. Which may be taken as another illustration of the old one to the effect that you can't keep a good man down.

The bureau advises students intending to enter colleges and expecting to work their way through to write to the school officials in advance to inquire about job prospects. Many colleges have employment bureaus while at others the local Y. M. C. A. or Y. W. C. A. performs that service. Commercial employment agencies cooperate with schools in some places. At schools where there are no such special facilities it is well to write to the dean of men or the dean of women, the registrar, the treasurer, or even the president, making inquiry.

Standings remained unchanged, but that was because there was too wide a difference in the percentage column to effect a metamorphosis in one day Rome wasn't built in a day either.

Indianapolis helped the unusual things to happen when it broke out of a nine inning session with Kansas City, the league leaders, with a 6 to 3 score. The game weakened the Cowhold on first and strengthened the Hoosiers' grasp on fourth position. Louisville took a two-game series from Milwaukee by 7 to 5 and 8 to 7 scores. The Colonels now have fifth position and Milwaukee slid into the cellar again, which would have aston ished the fans three weeks ago, but The lovely Columbus Senators split a double-header with St. Paul by 2 to 3 and 7 to 5 scores respectively. St. Paul still remains a safe third and Columbus is a weak seventh.

Last but not least of all, comes To ledo's feat of breaking Minneapolis amidships by slugging out nine runs. wien Minneapolis did their darndest, which wasn't well enough, seeing that only brought in eight runs.

A GREAT PERFORMER!"

The motoring world has already endorsed the Marquette as "a great performer!" And no wonder-10 to 60 miles an hour in 31 seconds—over the top of a long 11.6% grade at 25 miles an hour, starting at 5 at the bottom — all in high gear! (The average road grade is 7%). 68 or 70 honest miles in comfort! There isn't a phase of performance where it can't show a clean pair of wheels to every car in its price class.

One word can say most about the Marquette-it's "VALUE." The Marquette with the latest Bodies by Fisher is America's most complete moderate-priced car. Throughout this great new six—in every feature, from bumper to bumper, from top to tread - there is more quality than seems possible to put into a car at the price. But it is there, because Buick knows how to build an extra margin of out-and-out goodness into all its products.

Drive the Marquette and you're bound to say, with all the others, "A great performer!"

KATIES WIN, 4-3, TO WREST LEAD FROM WELLSVILLE

Eddie Bayley Drives In All of Potters' Markers

Pushes in Three Runs With Homer in Third and Another With Single in Seventh; Deshler, Mack all Duel on Slab.

HORTSTOP ED-DIE BAYLEY of the Katles packed powerful wallop last night as he drove the local Potters to a 4-3 victory over the Wellsville Nash Motors at Nicholson Field, wresting the Inter-City league lead from the Nicholson nine in

A hammer and tongs contest. In the third frame, with Mackall and Coleman on the paths, Bayley slammed out a home run to deep cen-ter field and that accounted for three of the K. T. K. markers. In the seventh he drove Mackall across with the winning tally with a single to right field. Eddie's homer was the third four-sack clout slammed into that middle territory at Nicholson Field in the last two games, Bill Mundy and Johnny Watson hitting 'em in the same place last Saturday. The Katies collected 10 hits off Sonny Deshler but errors at inoppor-tune times handicapped the Wellsville twirler. Don Mackall went the route for the Katies and meted out eight

George Wagner contributed the star fielding feature of the game when he speared Morris' hard hit drive to the once more it was up to Eddie Bayley right field fence in the third frame and the infielder came through with with a one-hand stab. Coleman and a single to right, scoring Mackall. Talbott engineered some fancy plays around second base and Pete Dustnine, grabbed the spotlight when he out on infield flies. nabbed Kinsey's foul fly and pegged to the plate to cut off Witherow.

Kent McConnell, Bob Witherow,
Bayley and Audrey Morris fattened up their batitng averages, each with two safe raps. Bill Talbott led the losers with two bingles in three trips to the platter.

Wellsville scored in the first. G. Wagner beat out a hit down the first base line. Bill Rager sacrificed. Cal Wagner drew a walk and George stole third, counting on Talbott's sacrifice to center.

The Katies took the lead in the third when three counters trickled over the plate. Mackall opened the inning with a single over second. Witherow popped to Talbott. Cole man rapped to Canne and the third sacker's throw to first was wide. Bayley then caught one of Deshler's curves for a line drive over short that went into deep center for four bags. The Motors knotted the tally in their half of the sixth. Hancock, who had gone to third, walked and Lintner singled, Hancock going on to third. Lintner then swiped second. They both moved up a sack, Hancock counting, on Deshler's sacrifice fly to Witherow. G. Wagner drove one at Bay ley and the shortstop pegged to the plate to get Lintner, Wagner going on to second from which point he finished

CHESTER, NEWELL BATTLE TONIGHT

With but two games separating the league leaders from the tail-enders, a hot fight looms as Inter-City league clubs prepare for the final

Deadline RUDY DEFEATS TEDDY WELCH On Trades Looming

Major League Clubs Have Three Days to Bolster Lineups.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
YORK, June 12.—In three days, they will blow the whistle on major league trades for the rest of the 1929 season, in view of which it is interesting to note to day a state of affairs that bodes ill, as we say at the delicatessen store, for the current champions of the world The American league apparently has turned thumbs down on the New York

There evidently isn't to be much last minute trading in either league barring Oils and Anderson Coal No. 2. some overnight transfers of minor con sequence. There probably will be none for the Yankees, unless I have been misinformed.

This once great institution, winner of three straight pennants and successive world series in a minimum number of eight games, is in the toughest spot it has known since 1925 when it had to be led out behind the old barn and mercifully shot. Is the rest of the league pained to learn of this? Don't make me laugh; I'm on my way to a funeral Rest of League Not Interested.

The rest of the league seems to b looking out the window in a very pointed manner as Miller Huggins attempts to convince it that it is important that he get another pitcher. He, of course, is very foolish to attempt this; the league was convinced of the fact as long ago as last April.

Huggins thought he had Hadley from the Washington club, for Grifbusiness under more encouraging aus-

There were only three thinks against the trade from Griff's standpoint: first, he picked up ira Flag-stead; second, Hadley began to win; third, he feared the city of Washington might become irked, the city of Washington being dependable about things like that. If you give it a chance, it will irk right in your face. Griff decided not to give it a chance.

Huggins has abandoned all hope too, of chivving the Red Sox out of Ed Morris. Even the Boston club, which used to board some of the lo-cal help until Huggins needed them, no longer will do business with the Yankees. The White Sox might; also the Indians. However, Huggins has tried to do business in both towns during recent years without getting anywhere or anything. The Athletics will do no business and you can go and bet on it. The only business yet to be transacted at Shibe park is with the man who prints the world series tickets. I don't think either the Browns or the Tigers would be more than politely interested in a proposi-tion, either, although the latter need a shortstop worse than a head needs the average neck.

Therefore, it looks very much as though the American league has decided that the Yankees must live off Detroit ..... 603 601 601-5 7 their own fat or die in their

There has been some talk of the Dodgers sending McWeeney and Henline to the Reds for Donahue, Kolp and Zitzmann but, so far as I know, they are still talking.

The Giants also are on the counter for a second baseman and, a few days ago, one of their Boswells revived the Fresco Thompson trade with the Phillies. This might have been possible last year when the Phillies weren't where they are now.

McGraw is smart about things like that. He knows he can win no pennants with players he might have had

"NOT A COUGH IN A CARLOAD"

Hands Unseen

New Mystery Story of "Gray Phantom," Loveable Outlaw.

By Herman Landon

Copyright by Street and Smith Corporation.

"The queer doings began with a series of letters that were smuggled into the house in some mysterious way William found some of them on the stand in the vesti bule; the others seem to have been placed in some spooky fashion right under Craig's nose while he was looking the other way. The leters seemed to have a terrifying effect on him, but nobody knew what was in them until they were found in his pocket after the murder. They were all typewritten, and all of them seem to have been written by The Gray Phantom."
"Seem to?" said the inspector again, still fixing 50 per cent of his gray matter on the papers before him. "That's it, inspector. The Phantom's name was typed at the bottom of every one of them, but that doesn't prove he wrote them all. Two or three were short and One of them said something about a person named Frey and an oil deal that took place way back in ninety-eight. Looked to me as if it was meant to put a scare into Craig. Another said the writer hoped Craig was enjoying his last night on earth. Real creepy, that one. Then there was a long letter that was worded exactly like the one received by President Eggleston of the Atlantic Trust Company a few days ago."

"Eh?" At last the inspector looked upon turned toward "You mean the crazy letter in which The Phantom asked Eggleston to lend him a million dol-

The lieutenant nodded, "The long letter found in Craig's pocket was exactly like that one. The Phantom explained he needed ten million dollars and had to have the coin in a hurry. He was writing to nine other rich bugs, asking them to lend him a million each, as current interest, and promising to repay the money within a year. The letter made it plain that if the loan wasn't granted voluntarily. The Phantom would take it by force, but in any event he gave his word of honor that the money would be returned within a year."

"Craziest thing I ever heard of!" snorted the inspec

That's what Eggleston thought. He sent the letter headquarters and told us that he had laughed so heartily over it that his gout was relieved and that he would treat The Phantom to the best dinner in town if he only knew where to find him. Now, we know The Phantom wrote ten of those letters. One was sent to Craig, another to Eggleston, but we con't know who got the other eight. Evidently the others took it as a joke and did not even take the trouble to communicate with

The inspector lighted a long, black cigar and clamped it fiercely between his teeth. "The Phantom must have gone plumb dippy. No same man would expect a conservative business man to lend a million to a crook."

True enough, but everything The Phantom ever did looked crazy at first sight. There was always method in his madness, though, inspector. He never did anything without good reason. I am wondering how Eggleston's gout is today after learning what happened to Craig last night. I bet a pair of pink socks that the other eight rich guns who received The Phantom's letters are also having a funny feeling in the pit of the stomach. That isn't the point, though. What puzzles me is one of the other letters found in Craig's pocket."

"What was it like?"

Culligore made a wry face. "It was evidently written on the same typewriter as the others, and the name of The Gray Phantom was typed at the bottom of it. That's where the resemblance ends though. That letter was pitched in an entirely different tune, inspector. It was a plain comedown. It told Craig that, since he had failed to come across with a million. The Phantom took it-for granted that he was hard up and didn't want to squeeze him too hard.

If Craig couldn't raise a million, the Phantom would be satisfied with half. That was the gist of it."

The Craig Case. Culligore pursed his lips and looked hesitantly at the broad tips of his shoes. "I'll just bet a pair of pink socks, inspector, that the Phantom didn't write that let-He may have written the others, or some of them, but not that one. I never yet knew the Phantom to back down. With him it's all or nothing."

"Just what are you driving at?" "I'll get to the point in a minute. You can imagine what effect a letter of that kind would have on a wise old bird like Craig. Craig may have been scared at first, but that letter braced him up. It convinced him that the Phantom was weakening; that he was only making a big bluff. If he had been tempted to yield be fore, that letter put all thoughts of surrender out of his mind. Just the same, he didn't feel quite at ease. guess that big, gloomy house looked a kind of creepy to him, especially at night. And he couldn't figure out how those letters had got inside the house. It gave him a spooky feeling, and he was never long on nerve. He decided he would be safer with a bodyguard beside him, and so he sent for Harry Bell."

"That crook?" exclaimed the inspector in disgust.

Culligore grinned shrewdly. "Maybe there were reasons why Craig would rather have a crooked bodyguard than a straight one. Anyhow, he sent for Bell, and Bell came. One of the guest rooms three flights up— the blue room, it's called—had been put in readiness for them, and they went there to spend the night. Wildiam had brought up food and refreshments and several armfuls of wood to keep a fire going all night. What happened may never be known, but along toward morning Miss Wayne heard a noise that sounded like a shot. With William and two other servants she hurried up to the blue room. They shouted and knocked on the door, but no response came. The wood is very heavy, and they could not hear what was going on inside. Finally the three servants got a heavy piece of furniture which they rammed against the door, shattering one of the panels. I put William through a stiff cross-examination on what they found when they entered. It sounds fishy, but I'm convinced he told the truth.

The inspector, all attention now, leaned eagerly for-

"Here's the queer part, the lieutenant went on. "In the first place, the door was bolted on the inside, and the bolt is equipped with a safety catch that absolutely precludes a tampering of any kind. There is only one window in the room, and in front of it is a heavy shutter. Both the window clasps and the fastenings on the shutter were intact. It didn't seem humanly possible for any one to have entered that room without being admitted by the occupants, and yet that's exactly what hap-

"When Miss Wayne and the servants entered Craig was lying on the floor at the farther side of the room, with the table between him and the door. An ordinary kitchen knife was sticking out of the wound in his chest. On the other side of the table, about six or eight feet away, Bell was sitting in an easy chair, dead to the world. He didn't recover consciousness until three hours later, and then it was discovered that he had a good-sized lump on the back of the head. He said it all happened so quickly that he didn't know what was up until something struck him on the head and put him to sleep. It appears that about twenty minutes before it happened, some one knocked on the door. Bell opened and look out in the hall, but couldn't see anybody, and Craig would not let him leave the room. When the door was locked again, a note was found in the chair Craig had occupied. It said the writer hoped he was enjoying his last night on earth. When Craig saw it, he turned woozy all of a sudden. He arcused Bell of all kinds of woozy all of a sudden. He accused Bell of all kinds of crazy things; even threatened to kill him. While he was pointing his gun at Bell, there came a knocking on the door again. Bell opened and looked out, but Craig wouldn't let him leave the room. Bell was plumb disgusted. Then the murderer appeared. "From where?" asked the inspector.

"Nobody knows. From the looks of things, he must have stepped through a solid wall. Bell tells me he couldn't have been hidden in the room, fro he had made a thorough search. He had also examined the lock on the door, the fastening on the shutter and the window and tapped every portion of the floor, walls and ceiling. There wasn't a loophole anywhere. He can't imagine how the murderer got into the room. For that matter, though, the way he got out is just as mysterious as how he got in, for there was no sign of him when Miss Wayne and the servants entered.'

since regarding the establishment of a swimming pool at a certain location, says the Y. M. C. A. Spotlight, one of the justices, commented as follows on the benefits of swimming:

Swimming is a universal recreation of the highest order. It is healthful. It strengthens one's lungs because it compels deep breathing. "It strengthens the nervous system, because it induces natural sleep. It strengthens and sets right the pelvic organs, because the body is in motion on the horizontal plane. It strengthens the skin and prevents the growth of gray hair.

"It reduces the corpulent and rounds out the attentuated. One for-cets his business cares while swimming, and thus it helps to preserve nis mental balance as well as muscular symmetry.

"By correcting tendencies to weakness in various ways, it improves one's temper and disposition, for a healthy liver maketh a cheerful man. It relieves the strain on the human constitution caused through inactivity. "There is no better exercise than swimming to offset the evils of a sedentary life, as it brings into activity every muscle in the body without any undue strain, enlarges the diaphragm, wards off tuberculosis, straightens spinal column, corrects humpback and the evils that arise from im-

Report Made of Inspection by Miss Joanne Ortells.

MORALE STRESSED

Development of Health And Medical Work Praised.

The Fairmount Children's home, near Alliance, has taken on an "up-ward look" as a result of the "fine relationship that has been worked out the superintendent, matron and staff," according to a report by Miss Joanne Ortells, R. N., of the Institution Inspection Bureau, Division of Charities, Department of Public Welfare, Columbus.

Copy of Miss Ortells' report which has been received by the board of trustees of the Fairmount home fol-"During our recent visits to the Fair

The trustees should be just as proud of the number of children they have out, and should feel that they belong to the home just as much as though they were within the four walls.
